+ Jobs

More and more high school students are working more than ever. Freshman through seniors, girls and boys, in-town and out-of-town—all of us seem to have jobs. Even with few or no bills to pay, we still seem to need money.

Just having spending money is one of the biggest reasons for a student to have a job. There's always some darned thing that needs to be bought. Some things we need for school, some for home, and some for fun. And it's always nice to have a little extra cash sitting in the bank or in your pocket.

A lot of students are also concerned about the cost of college. Some of us start saving a little later than others, but college is one of the main reasons we start saving money in high school. A large number of students going off to college will most likely have to pay a chunk out of their own pockets, whether for tuition, books, or room and board, or simply to provide their own spending money. Some may have to worry about paying for their entire education. But no college is cheap, and everyone knows that.

Usually, the foremost bills paid by high school students while still in high school have to do with a car. We have to have jobs just to be able to keep our cars. Car insurance, flat tires, check-ups, and the loan payments that make us one check closer to actually owning a car are all reasons students work.

A job often takes precedence over almost everything else. Plans with friends, family time, and homework often take a back seat to being gainfully employed, but there's a nice reward at the end of every week or two for those who stick with their jobs. The end result is that we're learning to become more and more independent by having jobs and learning how to accept responsibility by working with and for other people as well as by handling our own money.

But one thing's for sure—it definitely cuts into our free time.

Dear Jeremy,

Congratulations! We're very proud of you and all your accomplishments. Good luck in everything you do.

All our love,
Mom, Dad, Geoffrey, and Kara

Dear Courtney,

Good luck with your future plans. You've been a great kid. Through all of your ups and downs, life does get better. As Thomas Jefferson said, "I like the dreams of the future better than the history of the past."

Love you always—Mom and Dad

Dear Jessica L. W.

Be proud of who you are—I am. I will be there for you always. Hold your head up high and go for the best.

Love Mom

Jeremy,

We're so proud of you and all that you've accomplished. Be yourself as you always have. "Believe in yourself."

"We love you,"
Dad, Mom, and Bonnie

Jason

Follow your dreams.
Set your goals high.
Keep making us proud,
As the years go by.

We love you, Jason,
Mom, Dad, and Justin

Kylee

Into the future Kylee rides with her bright blue eyes open wide. Before she goes, we want her to know we love her. Good luck.

Love always,
Mom, Dad, and Eric

Justin,

We admire that you have chosen to develop your talents: musical, athletic, humorous, as well as your character. You have made us so proud.

Love,
Mom and Dan

Dear Andy,

We are proud of you! We wish you the very best. We love you!

Mom and Rudy
Dad and Robin

Cindy,

Remember—the difference between a blessing and a curse is the way you react to it. We're proud of your reaction.

Mom, Dad, and James

Adam

Congratulations, you made it! We are so very proud of you, and we know you will succeed in anything that you do!

Love you lots,
Mom, Dad, and Andy

Fire brings with it uncertainty.
Will we burn as brightly as before?
What lies ahead?
How will we maintain our flames?

There is no one answer.

Some fires will be torches lighting the way.

Some fires will be the comforting flames in a fireplace.

Some fires will be silent, burning somewhere unseen.

Some fires may change the world.

But all fires begin somewhere.

Some began here.

Some burn here still.
